

SCIENCE CLUB

December 2009

11/30

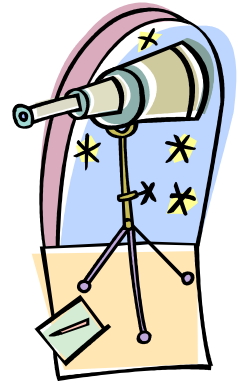

Bats

Ian is a bit batty for bats. He can echolocate them anywhere in the world. He wishes to make up for any blindness you may have for these very cool flying mammals. (Did I take the puns too far this time?)

12/7

Telescopes

Four hundred years ago Galileo studied the skies with a new toy and made shocking discoveries about space. Tarn helps us learn about this “toy” and with clear skies maybe we also can make some discoveries of our own.

12/15

The Science of Toys

Maxine is going to help us build a few toys and then determine how science makes them work.

Happy Holidays from all of us at Bellevue Country Day School. Class will resume on Monday, January 4, 2010.

Snow policy reminder: Check the school hotline (425-881-8899), the website (bellevuecountrydayschool.com), and/or weather conditions to determine if class is being held.
